

Abstract

Described is an oleaginous composition containing an especially antioxidative, flowable active ingredient, said composition being used as an additive for an oil principally for food preparations, wherein the viscosity of the composition is between the viscosity of the active ingredient and the viscosity of the oil.